

SAUNTERINGS—BY BARON CHEVRIAL

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Foulks announce the engagement of their daughter, Edna Garrigues, to Kenneth J. Luman. The date of the wedding has not been set, but will be announced shortly and will occur in September. Mr. Luman will arrive here today to remain a fortnight, and will return in August.

The wedding will take place in St. Mark's Cathedral and will be a large and fashionable affair, to be followed by a reception. The announcement will come as a surprise to all except the more intimate friends of Miss Foulks and Mr. Luman, and there will be considerable entertaining for them preceding the date set for the ceremony.

Miss Foulks is one of the loveliest girls in Salt Lake society, and her charm and other qualities have endeared her to a host of friends both here and in Denver where she has frequently visited. She is a stunning girl of the brunette type of beauty and has a personality all her own.

Mr. Luman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abner Luman, is a splendid fellow, well liked and admired by all who know him. He is associated with his father in his extensive business here and in Wyoming, and after the marriage they will live here during the winters.

The match is an excellent one and the wedding will be one of the really important events of the season.

Miss Becky Almond and Henry Oberndorfer, who appeared in a recital at the Salt Lake theater on Monday night, assisted by Alberto Jonas, gave such a recital as is seldom heard outside of those cities where there are no concerts except by real artists. Aside from the praises of those in the audience who were supposed to know something of music, the commendation of the real musicians was indicative of the real worth of the artists and proved beyond question that Salt Lake has made an additional contribution to the list of geniuses sent abroad.

An explanation is due regarding the account which appeared in these columns in reference to the Allied bazaar held at the Country club ten days ago. The writer naturally thought that those originally mentioned in the list of people responsible for the start of the affair were the same who brought it to a brilliant conclusion. In commenting on their efforts, those chiefly responsible were omitted, namely, Mrs. J. H. Portugal and Miss Lillian Woodward, who carried the work successfully through. In justice to them this explanation is due.

Mrs. Walter C. Lewis entertained at a luncheon for Mrs. William H. Cunningham of San Francisco, on Tuesday, and Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Armstrong gave a musical in her honor on the same evening. Mrs. Cunningham, who was formerly a society leader in Salt Lake, will be extensively entertained during her visit here.

We wonder if there is any truth in the story of a wedding supposed to have taken place here during the week, where the bridegroom was between sixty and seventy and the bride twenty-one. As the couple came to the altar the minister looked them over and remarked "Haven't you made a mistake, the baptismal font is at the other end of the church."

The marriage of Miss Enid Flannery to Lieut. Crawford Lindsay will take place at Folkestone, England, on Saturday next. The marriage will be of great interest to those in local society. Dr. Lindsay, father of the groom, will return to this city shortly after the ceremony.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. McMillan on East South Temple street, which has been the scene of numerous marriage ceremonies, was never more beautiful than on Wednesday evening, when Miss Mildred Vivian McMillan and John Vimont Lyle were married, the Rev. George E. Davies officiating. The rooms were beautiful in pink roses and ferns, and a host of friends were present to witness the ceremony and express their felicitations. Included in the bridal party were Mrs. Gustave Luellwitz, matron of honor, Miss Virginia Smith and Miss Euphemia Smith, the flower girls, Miss Helen Kearns, Miss Dorothy Adams, Miss Olive Wall and Miss Glenn Walker. Charles A. Walker was best man for Mr. Lyle. Among those who assisted in the reception following the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. McMillan, and two of the sisters of the bride, Mr. Samuel Adams and Mrs. Charles L. Smith. The radiant bride was exquisite in white and silver with valley lillies and orchids in a bouquet of unusual beauty. Of all the McMillan beauties there is no gainsaying that Miss Mildred was the prettiest. Mr. and Mrs. Lyle will return from their wedding trip in August and will make their home in this city.

The marriage of Miss Mary Jennings to Frederick Richards Taylor will take place today in the First Congregational church. Miss Jennings is one of the beauties of the smart set, and her wedding will be an important event in society circles.

Mrs. Edwin F. Holmes will entertain at a tea at the Amelia Palace on Friday afternoon next. Formal invitations will not be issued, the affair being in the nature of those this charming hostess usually gives following her return from her winter home in Pasadena. Mrs. Holmes will have for her guest for a week or two Miss Adele Blood, who will be welcomed by those who have previously met her socially and also admired her work in "The Picture of Dorian Gray."
